Roxbury Township, NJ 07876, US

The Presbyterian Church which stands here today was constructed in 1853. It replaced an earlier church building at this site which was built circa 1760. That earlier building stood here during the Revolutionary War, when it was used as a hospital and an arsenal. In early 1777, General George Washington and the Continental (American) Army were encamped about ten miles from here at Morristown. When many of the soldiers took ill with smallpox, some were taken to this church which was used as a hospital for them. The Hanover Presbyterian Church in East Hanover was used for the same purpose.

The First The First Presbyterian Church of Succasunna is a rare historic gem. For over 250 years we have served the "Suckasunny Plains" and the surrounding community. One of the oldest in the county, our congregation was organized around 1745. The first sanctuary was constructed on this site in 1760. From its beginning, members of the FPCS have been involved in local, state, and national affairs. During the Revolutionary War, the church served as barracks and a hospital. It is said that George Washington visited wounded troops here. It also served as an arsenal. One of the cannons stored here was melted down for the new Centennial Bell at Independence Hall in Philadelphia in 1877.

215 S Hillside Ave

At Temple Shalom, we celebrate Reform Judaism in words and music, through action and interaction, with emphasis on Jewish traditions. We embrace our Jewish identity through Nefashot, our passion to touch the hearts and souls of everyone around us. We are a supportive, caring, extended family, welcoming all and serving a broad area of northwestern New Jersey. In the summer of 1960, ten very committed and determined Jewish families founded Temple Shalom (Roxbury Reform Temple). Within three years, the congregation had formed a Sisterhood, a Brotherhood, and a Youth Group, while holding services at borrowed facilities. In 1965, construction began on our four-and-a-half acre site on South Hillside Avenue. To keep pace with its growing membership, the original structure was expanded in 1976 and again in 1988-89. The building now houses a spacious sanctuary, a large and attractive social hall, administrative offices, a youth lounge, twenty classrooms, and a large meeting room. From ten original families, we have grown into a medium-sized synagogue that is small enough to be personal and large enough to encompass a variety of interests and activities.

Hercules Property

Roxbury Township, NJ

The property has long been the largest undeveloped land in Morris County. The property - makes up 8.5 percent of Roxbury's 21 square miles, bounded between Route 46, Howard Boulevard, the Mount Arlington train station and Berkshire Valley Road. The long-vacant site once housed the Hercules munitions plant on Route 46. Required environmental cleanups and complications caused by Highlands-area water protections delayed any work on the site for years. The property had a storied history of explosions, some of them deadly, while Hercules operated there, beginning in 1912.

Hundreds of residents manufacturer high explosives at the Hercules Powder Factory, according to the Roxbury Township Historical Society. Two explosions killed six workers in 1934.

Then, in 1940, more than 297,000 pounds of gunpowder blew up at the factory in a series of explosions and fires, leveling 20 buildings in the nearby area. That explosion killed 51 people and injured and burned 200 others, according to the historical society.

The reopened in 1941, according to the historical society. In 1967, an explosion and fire killed two workers. In 1989, another explosion injured at least 20 people. In 1994, four workers were sent to the hospital after a machine mixing 500 pounds exploded.
